THE RETREAT FROM SILIVI—The Turkish 4th Army Corps after the disastrous retreat from Lule Burgas retired through Chorlu and Kulikli, and from the latter place on to Silivi. The Turkish commander halted for a couple of days in the town to collect his scattered troops and concentrate the different brigades of his command. On the approach, however, of the 6th division of the 3rd Bulgarian Army Corps, the 4th Turkish Army Corps' commander decided to fall back on to the high ground at Hademkeni. For a long time the retreating troops suffered from hunger rather than kill the sheep which they encountered in their flight. Eventually, however, they overcame their repugnance to the strong and disagreeable flesh of these animals, which are reared solely for their merino wool, and the above picture shows a party of soldiers guarding a herd of sheep which they had commandeered.

BRITISH RED CROSS PARTY NOW ON DUTY IN TURKEY—Three units of "Red Cross Men" recently left London for the theatre of war in Turkey under the command of Major Doughty Wylie. They are now attending to the needs of the wounded in the war zone. The above picture shows the units passing through Trafalgar Square, London, on their way to Charing Cross station. TWENTY YEARS A SERVANT OF ROYALTY

THE late Mr. Lewis, of the Military Stores Department, Quebec, who died recently in the Ancient Capital, was a splendid type of the Irish gentleman, albeit he was endowed with all the fighting qualities of the brilliant Celt. When but a mere boy, he enlisted in the army and saw service with his regiment in many stirring battles in defence of the colors. While yet the handsome, romantic, young Irishman, Mr. Lewis was named orderly to the late Lord Dufferin, Governor-General of Canada, one of whose sons Mr. Lewis had saved at the risk of his own life from a watery grave at Gaspé. He was appointed to the retinue of the Marquis of Lorne and H.R.H. the Princess Louise, with whom he became a genuine favorite. On arrival in Quebec of H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught, brother of the Princess Louise, Mr. Lewis was commanded to appear before His Royal Highness. Mr. Lewis was, however, unable to respond to the call, as he was then lying at death's door in the Hotel Dieu Hospital, Quebec.

As an inventor, Mr. Lewis was best known for his "Lewis Military Equipment," for which he was commended by the greatest army men in the British Empire. Always and everywhere an ardent, eloquent supporter of Home Rule, his deep religious spirit never permitted him to waver for a moment in his devotion to his legitimate superiors. For

AN EPOCH-MARKING TABLET.—On the occasion of the recent inauguration of the new floating dry dock at Maisonneuve by H. R. The above picture shows the tablet as it looked just before it was placed in position on the interior wall of the dry-dock. It is one of the largest and heaviest tablets ever made in Canada, and was manufactured with remarkable rapidity. It was executed by Rubenstein Brothers, of Montreal.
